WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Today will be dry and warmer with high pressure over the region. A few high clouds will drift over the region otherwise sunny skies are Expected. Temperatures will warm into the 70s within the valley to the 50s for the mountains. A storm system will be moving into the region for Easter. Currently it looks like it will start to spread along the coastal range and locally into the valley during the morning hours and then spread over the remainder of the area in the afternoon. Snow levels are still uncertain at this time.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Warmer today under weak high pressure aloft. Low pressure off the West Coast will bring increasing onshore flow for Sunday through mid week with a cooling trend spreading inland. A return and deepening of the marine layer with more night and morning coastal low clouds and fog is expected with periods of gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts. Stronger high pressure aloft and weak offshore flow will bring well above average high temperatures for next weekend.
